John Wesley School opens

THE FIRST PUPILS have moved into the first Anglican/Methodist maintained school in Kent – the John Wesley school at Ashford.

The formal opening is planned at Pentecost weekend in May with Bishop Stephen and the Chair of Methodist Conference

The project began 7 years ago but it still took round the clock working for the school to open on time on Wednesday 5

September. The school has admitted just over 100 children at present – with contractors still on site and staff and builders working round each other (below)!

The roll is expect to rise to 210 within three years and will eventually be 420 when further classrooms are built hopefully within five years - the hall and other support spaces have been built for a 420 pupil school

(two form entry). In addition a nursery on the site is due to be started this autumn to open next September.

The Rev Tim Wilson Chair of Governors & Rector of Great Chart with Singleton said "It has been challenging and rewarding being part of this wonderful new project, particularly to work closely with the local Methodist Churches and especially Rev

Richard Grocott, Ashford Methodist Superintendent Minister who is Vice Chair of the Governors. We are privileged to have an experienced and hardworking staff team led by Mrs Gail Spragg the headteacher (photo right with some of the pupils). They are all still smiling despite the pressures and long hours to open on time!'

Rupert Bristow, Diocesan Director of Education added "This is a fantastic new school that shows what is possible when dedicated people work ecumenically, harnessing local, diocesan, county-wide, and national expertise and funding for a school which is at the heart of the growing community of Singleton. Congratulations to Diocesan Architectural Services for their brilliant design, to Jenners the main contractor for all their hard work and to the school community for breathing life into a wonderful facility.

THE BISHOPS' DAY FOR LAITY - 15 SEPTEMBER - AT THE TRINITY CENTRE, MARGATE

Sharing stories for Change

A baptised imagination

I have a favourite road sign. I saw it in an Australian magazine. It read 'Choose your rut carefully. You will be in it for the next 200 miles.'

Replace 'miles' with 'years' and we could put it outside our churches.

Our traditions are double edged.

At their best they are God's great gifts, which enable us to remain true to the Faith and to enjoy the benefit of God's goodness in previous generations.

At their worst they turn relatively short lived patterns of church life into the only way things can be done. Both worship and mission require us to remain true to the central convictions of our faith and to ask God for a renewed imagination.

We read in Ephesians that God 'is able to accomplish abundantly far more than all we can ask or imagine, by the power at work within us.'

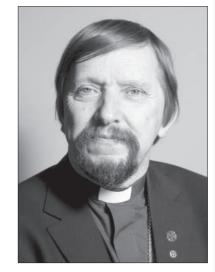

If God can do more than we can imagine, we should ask him to expand our imaginations.

In what previously unimaginable way could we serve our communities?

What previously unimaginable fresh expression of church could begin in our parish?

What, as yet unimaginable, initiative with young people, or the elderly might God have prepared for you?

As you worship and pray how might you encounter God in a way you had never previously imagined, but which takes you deeper into the traditions of our faith?

As we begin a new season of church life, let us pray for a baptised imagination.

Canon Clare Edwards with the campaigners

Campaigning for trade justice

TO PROMOTE the Christian Aid Trade Justice Campaign, Daniel Monagham, Sue Bones, Steve Wilkins and Mary Wood recently walked the 10 miles from Preston next Wingham to Canterbury Cathedral

There Canon Dr Clare Edwards invited them to the crypt to light a candle, to pray and to give a blessing for the strength of the campaign.

Mary Wood writes: Trade is a matter of life and death for millions of the world's poorest people. We want to see a fairer balance in the international trade rules which are biased in favour of the rich countries. They are allowed to provide vast amounts of help to their farmers. Poor countries can not. Rich countries are allowed to protect their traders from competition, poor countries can not.

"The Trade Justice Campaign is not asking for money, instead we want people to write to the Prime Minister expressing their concern over the unfair disadvantages and exploitation of the people in the world's poorest countries.

"The poor will have no chance unless the rules of international trade are changed."

For a copy of a suitable draft letter or further information, please contact Mary Wood on 01843 585360.

Unique insights into your Cathedral

On Tuesday 2 October Canterbury Cathedral stage its annual Open Evening from 5:30 pm - starting with Evensong - with a host of displays and presentations by the various departments.

Centre stage this year will be the work of the Archive Department. Documents on display will cover more than 1000 years of history, and include an early Tithe and City Map. Dating from circa 1642 this large map will be erected between pillars in the Cathedral Nave. It is rarely taken out of the strongroom because of its unique importance.

Many other documents will also be on display, from the earliest Anglo-Saxon charter to an 18th century vicar's unflattering comments about some of his parishioners!

For the first time in many years, the Corona Tower will be open to the public. It offers a remarkable view of Canterbury and the surrounding area - and a remarkable insight into the restoration work that has already begun. Specialist stonemasons and glaziers will be on hand to describe the work and to answer questions.

The Open Evening really is an event for the whole family. Entry, activities and tours are all free, and everyone is welcome. For more information call the Friends' Office on 01227 865292.

Murston's willow tree

THE WILLOW Tree Project in Murston was opened on Sunday 2 September by Rev Brian Shersby, Rector of Murston (with Bapchild and Tonge) until he retired in April.

Funded by the diocesan Mission Initiative Fund, the aim of the project is to provide a focal point in Murston where adults and young people can go for support, fellowship, spiritual guidance and general information.

The project is run by All Saints Church and is supported by Sittingbourne Deanery Synod whose Lay Chairman Christopher Gabriel, also spoke at the opening.

It is based in Murston Rectory where rooms have been decorated and furnished for use by individuals or groups of people. Rooms available include lounge, dining room, kitchen, office, cloakroom – all at ground level. The attached garage is being converted for use by small groups of young people. There is also a large secluded garden. Drop in sessions are currently held on Tuesday mornings and Thursday evenings.

Jesus. We all had great fun, adults and children. We did lots of craft things, like making lighthouses, treasure boxes and decorated eggs. We watched a DVD about Paul. Some of the adults gave us a drama show each day, and we played games. The church was decorated as a desert island; we even had our own pirate crews who each had a shelter. We also learned about Jesus and trying to be more like him as he's the light of the world."

Peggy Stone, who kept everyone fed and watered all week, said "I really enjoyed helping. Everyone was great and mixed well."

Laura Barber, St. Laurence Youth and Children's Worker, said: "The 'Landlubbers' week concluded with a Parish Family Service where the children took an active part, singing 'Sea Shanties', wring and reading the intercessions. They then watched the final part of the adult drama and searched for the treasure".

Bishop Graham writes:

There is an inseparable link between the gospel and Poverty and Hope. Jesus was sent to bring good news to the poor. He himself is the sole and final hope for the universe. In him alone it will be made new.

If this is true about Jesus it should be true of his followers as well. The church is to be good news to the poor and a sign and means of Money and prayer are not the only practical ways to fulfill this calling, but they are the place to start. I urge every parish to give generously to this year's projects and to pray for them regularly.

...about communities in Burma?

With support from churches in Britain, through USPG, the Anglican Church in Myanmar is providing practical help to all of Myanmar's communities. Buddhist and Christian alike. Myanmar (formerly Burma) suffers from extreme poverty. Life expectancy at birth is just 60 years, and less than half of all children are in education.

Christians make up around 5% of the population of the country. USPG is still one of the major financial providers of the province, providing muchneeded help with practical projects, that give health care and education for marginalised communities, and train leaders in agricultural development.

Health care for marginalized communities

Myanmar spends less on health per person than any other country. Many areas have no health service at all. A vital part of the church's work is to train up village health workers, who provide basic health education and treatment. The training is having a measurable impact. People are starting to move away from the belief that health is controlled by the spirit, and uptake of effective medicines is increasing.

Developing primary school education

Only a quarter of Myanmar's children complete primary education. In remote villages in Myanmar 's border areas, there is little opportunity for children to get any sort of education.

The church is providing boarding schools so that children from isolated areas can learn to read and write, and opening primary schools in the remotest areas. These schools are open to all children, regardless of their faith, helping to improve relations between Buddhists and Christians.

Improving agriculture

Seventy percent of the population in Myanmar live in rural areas, and need to grow their own food to survive. When they can learn better farming skills, and get access to more food, especially protein, it is a huge benefit to the community. USPG supports students to study agriculture in Japan. In 2007-2009, USPG will support leaders to train at the Asian Rural Institute, and will also support a project in Mandalay diocese which is helping to increase food production and help people have an adequate

The need...

Myanmar's people need health care, education and a route out of poverty. The church is struggling to provide these for Christians and Buddhists alike.

Please help us help USPG to make this work possible...

In Sri Lanka, many people depend on the tea industry for their livelihood. Plantation workers, the majority of whom are women, are an exploited workforce.

Until the 1990s plantations were run by the state, but since privatisation, working and living conditions have deteriorated. Coupled with a decline in the number of trade unions on the estates, people living and working in the plantation sector are currently among the poorest and most marginalised in Sri Lankan society.

Christian Aid's partner organisation the Institute of Social Development (ISD) has been a catalyst for the women on these plantations to come together and advocate for their rights.

Voices of Resistance

Chitrani is 51 years old and is the leader of a women's group on the Kobbsnills Estate. She earns 190 rupees (£1) per day. Chitrani was unable to read and write, but after attending literary classes run by ISD she is now able to sign and check her salary cards and make sure that other women are not being cheated out of their rightful pay. 'Most importantly I now have the courage to confront management and negotiate better conditions. I believe that by being empowered in this wav we are able to speak out'.

Through ISD, Chitrani has also learned about her legal labour rights. Before, women worked barefoot on the rough terrain, but by having the courage to confront management by going on a three-day strike, women are now allowed to wear slippers.

Selvi had no baskets to collect the tea leaves in and had to use her own money to buy plastic bags. ISD explained her legal rights to her and helped her complain to the management about the lack of baskets. She now receives money every six months to purchase bags.

Darkness into Light Pushpam, who lives near

Pussellawa and works on the Rochelle Estate, has a mission. She wants to make sure that 'women who are in the dark are brought out into the light.' Pushpam is one of ISD's project outreach workers and has set up a women's group which now has 15 members. They have worked together to persuade the management to allow pregnant women half a day's holiday to visit the doctor. Today, Pushpam feels empowered by what she does with the women's group. 'We should not be afraid to come forward, take risks and defend our rights,' she says. £58 pays a month's salary for one of ISD's project outreach workers.

Vallimail is one of the 100 or so women who have had literacy training in the past year. She believes that 'future generations should carry on this struggle for their rights and be empowered in the process'.

adication of poverty, and all that follows from it. Funds are used to support long-term hannelled through trusted partners who are in close contact with the target projects. These oose to give to the Appeal this year....

Ask any celebrity what they'd do if they were world leader, and achieving 'world peace' almost invariably comes top of their imaginary manifesto.

But are we really bovvered'

When Jesus said 'Blessed are the peacemakers, he was not talking about those who simply think peace is a good idea or a noble aim, but about those who actually do something about it. They are peacemakers, and the communities that enjoy the fruits of their peacemaking, are those who will be truly blessed.

CMS is committed to working tirelessly for peace and reconciliation in many communities around the world: for example in Sri Lanka, Burundi, and in the Middle East.

In Israel and Palestinian Territories CMS supports the work of Musalaha, a Christian peacemaking organisation that works with Arab and Jewish community leaders, women and young people.

The Musalaha Youth Camp

The situation in the country does not allow both sides to mix with each other on a daily basis. For the most part, Israelis only see Palestinians on a television screen. The only interaction many Palestinians have with Israelis is at the check point. Although there is a Palestinian population in Israel, called "Israeli Arab," they too live segregated and in their own neighbourhoods. Living side by side does not necessarily mean that both sides interact.

That is why the camps are so vitally important. They are set up so Israeli and Palestinian children share dormitories and are able to get to know each other and play together in a safe and secure environment. Activities include crafts, sports, swimming. dancing, rocket making, and many mixed team games. It's also a great chance for the children to learn more about God, through the daily bible studies. At the end of each camp the children leave laughing and singing, with a new understanding of who their brothers and sisters are.

Many children have never talked to the 'other' before, let alone shared a room, prayed, worshipped, and played together.

One of the important factors in this camp was the team of counsellors - Israelis and Palestinians standing together as true friends working as a unit showing the kids unconditional love and acceptance. These role models are what they will remember.

global issues?

We live in one world. What we do in Kent affects others and what others around the world do affects us as never before. Globalisation affects the clothes we wear, the music we listen to, the food we eat, the jobs we do, and our environment.

To recognise that we are all members of a world community and have responsibilities to each other is a modern reality. It is therefore important for our children to learn about and understand the world they live in, so that they can be better 'global citizens'.

Children and young people are aware that they live in an increasingly interdependent world which affects all aspects of their lives. Many understand the power they have as individuals to make choices or take action.

Kent and the Wider World, a voluntary organisation work both in Kent and Medway.

By working in schools, youth centres, faith and community organisations, it raises young people's awareness of global issues and enables them to take action for a world that is more just and sustainable.

Kent and the Wider World aims to:

- raise awareness of global issues and the links between people in Kent and Medway. and the wider world
- enable people to take action for a world that is more socially just and environmentally sustainable.

Kent and the Wider World offers a range of services and activities including:

- resources for teachers, schools, youth, faith and community groups
- continuing professional development programme for teachers and facilitators
- workshops in schools and for youth, faith and community groups on global issues.

In 2006, Kent and the Wider World:

- delivered workshops to over 900 children and young people
- provided training for over 120 teachers, youth workers and other educators
- distributed thousands of newsletters and loaned resources and artefacts to teachers, youth workers, advisors, members and others.

health and education Madagascar?

For a number of years now we have supported various projects in Madagascar. For the first time this year we will support two projects in one year. The first is very important in Madagascar's fight against Aids. Dr. Zoe Ravoniarisoa is director of the Diocesan Health and Development programme (Sahasoa).

The most recent programme is in regard to Education. Dr. Zoe is training people to go out and share with many of the communities in the diocese the need to be aware of the dangers of sexually transmitted diseases. Money from the Poverty and Hope Appeal will secure this programme for the future.

Our Second project is in the new Diocese of Fianarantsoa. Bishop Gilbert Rateloson has built a new school alongside his house at Manaotsara! The success of the schools programme, which we have supported in a previous year, has meant the necessity to build on 4 new classrooms.

Growing as disciples - a learning people...

Searching Synonyms

SPEAKING with a colleague familiar with Kentish culture, I asked what local understanding of 'collaboration' was. He said that, thanks largely to WW2, it is the language of traitors and betrayal. Is that then the local understanding of collaborative ministry? I thought it was about ministering together in partnership for the Kingdom of

As the new Local Ministries Officer, I am curious how Christians in ministry work together and the kingdom of God is made visible. The richness and subtlety of discipleship expresses itself in a myriad of real life signs of God among us:

- when we work together and 'do' something in partnership that we could not have done on our own,
- when we produce a service together as a worshipping congregation,
- when we treat the local community to a barbecue.

* and when we listen to the stories of others in the community in ways that begin to change us. Then something is happening! It is a sign!

Maybe I am making too much of it, but the miracles of connecting faith and fellowship through working together recreate us in the image of Christ and we become something more than we were. Ministry is service when we serve together, however mundane the task or even grouchy the participants. The Holy Spirit is re-creating us...and through us his world. Maybe collaboration is more about God working with us, undermining our frequent tendencies to independence when we forsake the beauties of interdependence that the body of Christ stands for.

Is collaboration the opening for a virtuous cycle of discovery with each other in celebration of God? Whether we use the word 'collaborative' or not to describe the way we work, learn, worship and play together is not the most important thing. I hope we are finding the words that work for us. And yes, maybe we need to acknowledge that the language of ministry has an air of conflict about it. But I trust that in moving together towards the 20/20 vision we are looking for ways to change the world with the hard edge of 'gracefully' discovering God and each other together.

In the future I want to feature examples of good practice in collaborative ministry so that others can share in it. If you have learned something about how you meet together, have structured your PCC.created your own style of Ministry leadership teams, or whatever, please let me know and we can share the learning!

Growing in the World a missionary people

'making Jesus known through word and action'

Words like 'mission' and 'evangelism' mean different things to different people, those meanings influenced by our experience, tradition and churchmanship.

For me, the following definition encapsulates the meaning of both words. It is the phrase - 'making Jesus known through word and action'

I like this phrase! It contains within it all the essentials:

- That the focus of the task is making Jesus known.
- That we do this by being present and active in our communities (action) and through proclamation and persuasion (word).
- That we need both 'word' and 'action' for that task to be effective.

Yet, understanding the task may still not be enough if we are to be effective

I have come to believe that if a church is to grow; making Jesus known though words and action has to be the undisputed and unrivalled top priority in a church's life. It has to be the value that infuses all others, and therefore informs every decision and action.

For example, is making Jesus known always the first item on the agenda of your P.C.C.? At least, is it on every agenda? What dominates the time and energy of your church? Is it making Jesus known or does the maintenance of the building absorb the little time, finance and energy available? Do you spend time in the PCC assessing the impact of your church upon the community and how that can be improved? Does your church reflect together at all on making Jesus known or does everything else seem to come first.

Of course, it goes without saying that services, the building, paying the diocesan share and all the other things of a church life, are very important. There are so many items that we have to cover on our P.C.C. agendas.

Nevertheless, we can allow all those things, and many more besides, to push making Jesus known down the list of priorities, if not literally off the agenda.

Effectively making Jesus known through word and action requires us to give it top priority. Is there anything else that is really more important?

May God bless you richly as you seek to make Him known. With warmest best wishes.

PCCs are you publishing the right information and in time?

Parishes who fail to deliver their annual report and accounts on time are in danger of losing charitable status under new legislation.

The 2006 Charity Act placed a legal requirement on charities including churches to publish certain information and for churches that includes an Annual Report incorporating a set of annual financial statements.

The PCC has a duty to compile annual accounts for independent inspection which then must be laid before the APCM for approval.

Those PCCs who still haven't finalised their accounts by now are in breach of a legal requirement.

Moreover, Church Representation Rules state that Annual Reports and Accounts must be filed at the diocesan office within 5 months of the end of year.

At the time of publication 30 PCCs had still not sent theirs in - despite reminders sent to treasurers and incumbents.

If you are a PCC member it's in your interest to check that these documents have been sent and the Treasurer has the official letter of receipt from Diocesan House. Should the Charity Commission check they have an ultimate power to remove charitable status from PCCs which haven't complied!

The Charity Commission begins the process of registering PCCs as charities in 2008 and they will begin to deal with all PCCs directly in the future! All PCCs should await further instructions from the Diocese and not attempt to begin the registration process themselves at this stage.

Training for Treasurers in the production of reports and accounts is available from the diocese. Guidance for PCC Secretaries on compiling Annual Reports is included in their introductory training course.

Please contact Rob Trice, Diocesan Accountant (rtrice@diocant.org) for further information.

Ulcombe

Tom Hart Dyke, author and broadcaster, will talk to the Ulcombe History Society on Tuesday 16 October at 7. 30 pm in Ulcombe Village Hall. Believing he was rich because he lived in Lullingstone Castle, guerrillas in South America took him and a friend hostage and held them for a year, hoping his parents would pay a very large ransom. In fact, they did not have the money! Since his release he has created a 'World Garden' at Lullingstone which is attracting tourists and horticulturists alike.

The evening is open to all. ☐ On Saturday 20 October Sutton Valence Choral Society will be leading a special concert in Ulcombe Church - a 'Come and Sing' event for anyone who wants to take part in singing Faure's Requiem and Vivaldi's Gloria. Rehearsals will be from 3 pm to 6 pm in the church with tea in the village hall before the concert at 7. 15 pm. Tickets are £8 for singers and £7.50 for 'audience'. To sing contact Mrs Alexandra Brown at Chegworth Manor Farm, Chegworth, Maidstone, Kent ME17. Email: alex@chegworth.net or

This month two parish priests who have contributed to changes in ministry patterns in this Diocese in recent years, are leaving for pastures new. We invited them to reflect on their time in Canterbury

Growing forward together towards 2020

Canon Karen Gorham

I have been asked to write something about my experiences in the Canterbury Diocese before I move to the Oxford Diocese to take up the post of Archdeacon of Buckingham very soon. My years in Maidstone have been very varied and it has been a privilege to have had a national, diocesan and local perspective on church life. This has not only renewed time and again my personal commitment to ministry within the Church of England, but also convinced me more of the importance of the church for 21st Century life.

My time in the Canterbury Diocese has seen us pass through the Growing Forward Together vision document phase and enter a new phase looking towards 2020. I leave just as key development work on that will begin. As I reflect on this and my time as Priestin-Charge of St Paul's, Maidstone, Area Dean.

Assistant DDO, member of Archbishop's Council and General Synod Representative, four important factors spring to mind.

Firstly, the importance of the local in any plan or vision. The church structures exist to support day-to-day ministry in our parishes. If, at any level of church life, we lose touch with our fundamental calling to be Christians where we are then we cease to be effective witnesses to the gospel. It is vital that we learn to listen to one another, and the voice of ordinary churchgoers and parish clergy should be heard and respected wherever decisions are taken. The second factor is the importance of doing things together. Once we have acknowledged that it is no longer an option for churches to stay as they are, but to adapt to meet the challenges that we face, we need then to discover ways in which we can share our rich resources together. If we are to be the Church, rather than local churches, let us affirm one another's strengths and support one another's weaknesses. Only then can we begin to be real missionary people in the places God has put us.

Thirdly I have seen the importance of developing ministry. Whatever age, whatever ability, we all have something to offer and gifts to be used in the service of Christ. Often by just giving people the opportunities and the encouragement they need we can bring to birth something significant and beneficial, bringing both joy and fulfilment to the individual and richness to the church. And my final factor, the importance of growing Christians. Most of all today we all need to be confident in our faith, to be able to live Christ-like lives 24/ 7 and to be able to share what we have with others. That takes teaching and training, and good role-modelling; it takes a commitment to prayer and worship and a personal relationship with God which permeates how we are, and how we do business. It's a tall order, and something I know I am going to go on learning. I will continue to pray for the Canterbury diocese as you plan ahead and I look forward now to seeing what life in Buckinghamshire holds as together we seek God's will for his church now and in the future.

Bishop Stephen set the tone for our day of journeying as a pilgrim learning community and later gathered us at the Eucharistic moment, sending us out with a greatly enriched, and shared, story. The Board of Ministry and Training team members provided a space for feasting and celebrating within the generous setting of Holy Trinity Margate's well-suited venue. Ann Morisy asked in her workshop about the moment when the self-asked questions 'Could I? Should I?' confront us with doing something of 'burdened' importance. When someone hearing of our burden responds with 'I will, if you will', that's the signal that can make all the difference

Reflections on the Marsh

Rev Martin Dale

Over the last three years I have been Priest in Charge of three Benefices on Romney Marsh, the cluster being formed from separate Benefices when I arrived. In these short years, I believe we, as a Leadership Team, have achieved much. And I'd like to pay tribute to the fine support that all of my leadership team has given me.

We have been allowed to pioneer the concept of "Focal Ministers" in the Diocese and I have been fortunate to be able to build up and leave a strong team of seven Focal Ministers. two of whom are retired Priests and five are Readers.

Many of you might ask what is a "Focal Minister"?

I believe Focal Ministry could well be described as a Rural Fresh Expression of Church. In the countryside, until about 40 years ago, there used to be a single Stipendiary Priest for almost every village. However, with falling numbers in rural congregations and, concomitantly, less income, this luxury is no longer possible and we have seen the amalgamation of parishes (and even Benefices) under the care of a single Stipendiary Priest. As a result it is not uncommon to find five or more rural parishes the responsibility of a single Stipendiary Priest.

And as they say, necessity is the mother of invention.

The concept of the focal minister developed out of the recognition that each of the villages still needs a minister to act as the "first port of call" for pastoral matters. That in short is the role of a focal minister, who may be lay or ordained.

As our lay focal ministers are all well respected in their local communities (and have theological training as recognised by their Reader's licence) I have been asking our Bishops to ordain them as ordained local deacons so that they too can deal with all of the Occasional Offices (baptisms, weddings and funerals) in their parishes.

To give you an idea of the potential for mission of the Occasional Offices of my three Benefices, we had, last year, about 20 baptisms and 20 weddings - as well as 120 or so funerals.

I believe the focal minister experiment has worked extremely well in our parishes. For example over the three years, one of our smaller parishes has grown about four fold (from a fortnightly congregation of about six to a weekly congregation of 20-30) and another larger congregation by about 50%.

As a further part of the process of integrating the parishes of the three Benefices, we also introduced regular Churchwardens meetings, sometimes with up to sixteen churchwardens and deputies and some of the leadership team uncomfortably crowded into the Vicarage lounge! These meetings have allowed the churchwardens to share their Church's events with each other. It also helps to avoid unnecessary clashes and allows us to share best practice.

We have also recognized the importance that our medieval buildings can have for mission in the Community and to this end we have been working to keep the majority of our churches open during daylight hours from April to September.

In closing, can I say it has been a privilege to be part of this experiment here on the Marsh. Finding and growing a Focal Minister team has been exciting - and amusing at times

I recall asking the former Area Dean of Folkestone one day if he had any bored priests. He said "Yes" and I said "Then we'll have him!" And thus we found one of the most successful of Focal Ministers.

They say the Marsh people are a rum lot – perhaps a reflection on their tradition of smuggling! Maddy and I will miss them when we move on to Leicester.

Canterbury to Rome 'bike-ride' finished in style

TWENTY-SEVEN pilgrims arrived in Rome on the afternoon of the 26 August having travelled 1,200 miles by bicycle along the ancient Via Francigena from Canterbury.

Along the way they raised over £100,000 for the £50 million Save Canterbury Cathedral appeal and 20 charities. They 'fuelled up' with 600 loaves of bread, 1,500 bananas, 600 croissants, 600 bowls of pasta and probably 200 pizzas. They climbed over 50,000 feet, in temperatures from 5° to 40°Centigrade. The highest point they reached was the 8,200 feet of the Grand St Bernard Pass.

Canon Edward Condry, Canon Treasurer of Canterbury Cathedral, and one of the organisers, said, "It has been a fantastic ride. 27 people, supported by six wonderful volunteers, have achieved a lifetime's dream. Wherever we have gone we have been met by great friendship. Towns have welcomed us with meals and entertainment. We have had grand official receptions as well as one unforgettable moment when on a hot day in a small French village we stopped and a man came out with a crate of beer for us to share.'

The youngest rider was 16, and the oldest 66 – his birthday was on the day the party reached Reims, so they celebrated it in Reims Town Hall with local champagne.

There were six women and 21 men. Some were experienced cyclists and some had never cycled further than the nearest shop. Everyone trained hard for a year, and each one has achieved their goal.

On the final day, the weather was blisteringly hot. The pilgrims were escorted into St Peter's Square by members of the Rome Fire Service where they were warmly greeted by representatives of the British and Italian governments as well as by Cardinal Comastri, the Pope's Vicar of St Peter's. Members of the cyclists' families had also flown out to greet them as they arrived in
